

From Evidence to Prevention. How to Prevent Violence against Women in Ecuadorian Universities - Executive Summary

Ecuadorian universities assume USD 68,833,079 in indirect costs (for students and teachers) per year, as a result of violence of partners and other members of the university community. This amount is translated into 3,664,409 lost days for 252,429 students and teachers affected by sexist violence. In addition, 7 out of 10 male and female students, who witnessed VaW situations, did not act or intervene.
